To whom it may concern

I hereby confirm that I worked in Uganda with Kobus Hurter from AgricultSURE during the period 2016 to 2017. Kobus visited me on several occasions during my stay. The project involved Maize farming in the Northern parts of Uganda. He was also involved in the sourcing of land across Africa for different projects such as large-scale Macadamia nuts and various other horticultural farming models.

AgricultSURE is also active in other countries in southern Africa and offers a wide range of hands on small farmer project management experience which include Agronomics, Finance and Project planning as well as Implementation and they brought extensive value to the project.

Their exceptional understanding of the African people and their traditions, the gentle way in which they communicated with the local land owners and respect they showed to them, made them loved by the community members who were involved in our project.

Kobus is well skilled and his prior knowledge in farming projects, made him the ideal person to advise project managers. His contribution to the Uganda project was valuable as he never tried to force unproven methodologies without putting it to practice in trial format first, also by sharing knowledge and practicalities from his personal experience, he guided us into implementing the correct measures.

AgriSkills Transfer, our accredited company, operates by sharing agricultural training material and courses online unto an E learning platform, and we currently also engage with AgricultSURE to equip Africa with the required skills to become food secure. AgriSkills Transfer is therefore rolling out learning programs for small scale farmers in the Plant- and Animal Production fields across the African continent.

I have the greatest respect for Kobus and AgricultSURE and the value they add to the African food industry.

Kind regards
