

We have worked with Kobus and AgricultSURE on unlocking productivity with rural and peri-urban farmers on the ABBA model in Zimbabwe. They provided agronomic training and support in crops such as maize, tomatoes, cabbages etc as well as soil tests and interpretation of results, as well as designing fertiliser programmes. Part of the process was to experiment with and explore the use of organic fertilisers so as to reduce production costs whilst increasing harvests. We also partnered together in seed potato production as a way of providing cheaper seed potatoes to the local small-scale farmers.
